Board of Health to Launch New Website

JONESBORO – January 12, 2009 – The Clayton County Board of Health (CCBOH) will launch its new consumer-friendly website – www.claytoncountypublichealth.org Wednesday, January 14. The resource will provide public health information, resources and tools for website visitors.

“We are very pleased to offer this valuable resource to the citizens of Clayton County and to the people who visit our county,” said Dr. Alpha Fowler Bryan, District Health Director. “I hope that when people visit the website they will find it user-friendly and helpful. We offer a vast array of public health programs and it is our intent that people will be able to access useful information on the many programs and services we provide.”

The website, www.claytoncountypublichealth.org, will feature a top navigation bar that will include links to general CCBOH information as well as health and wellness, environmental health, emergency preparedness and employment information. Each tab of the top navigation bar will include a drop-down box with links to additional information such as the Women, Infants and Children (WIC) Supplemental Nutrition Program, restaurant inspection scores, and career opportunities with the CCBOH. Also, links to other health websites will be provided.

For more information about the new website www.claytoncountypublichealth.org, please call 678.610.7259.
